OUR THANKS . . .

to the individuals and members of the business community who committed advertising, public relations, and donation dollars to the Georgian Sports Review '72.

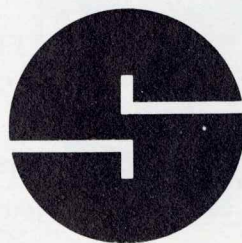

They have made it possible for us to promote Georgian Athletics and to provide a better means of communication between the Athletics Department and the University community.

Without this support from the private sector of the community the Physical Education programme at Sir George would have to be curtailed.

We, therefore, urge that those who consider themselves friends of Georgian Athletics remember and, when possible, patronize our advertisers.

Football: Four Team Division Drops RMC, Montréal

by Glenn Cole

The year 1971 was supposed to be the season the Sir George Williams Georgians fielded their best football team ever. The reason for the optimism was simple.

Extensive recruiting had been done during the off-season and the Georgians were coming off their best season in their brief gridiron history, finishing with a 4-2 won-lost record and in a second-place tie.

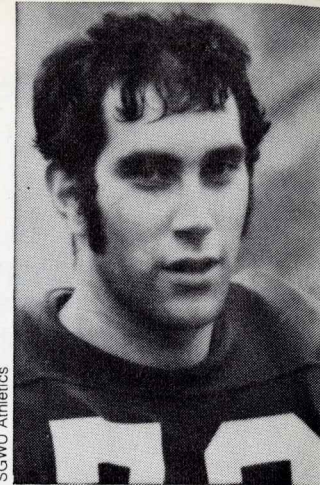

So with most of the key players returning from the 1970 team and some highly-touted newcomers coming in, 1971 was going to be the year Sir George was going to give Bishop's University Gaiters a good run for the championship in the Blue Division of the Quebec University Athletic Association.

But the Georgians' football express was derailed somewhere along the route and when the smoke cleared, Sir George football fans had been treated to a rather miserable season.

The year started off well enough as the Georgians delighted a large home crowd with a 17-16 triumph over the University of New Brunswick Red Bombers. The following week, the Georgians were downed 26-20 by St Mary's University Huskies in Halifax. The Huskies by the way eventually won the Atlantic title.

A 21-0 win over the University of Montreal Carabins left Sir George in a first-place tie and a No. 10 National ranking for the brief period of a week. It would have been great if the season had concluded there because in their next five games, the Georgians won only once.

Everybody and his brother had reasons for the lack of success on the football scene. The coaches were criticized by the players and vice-versa. One of the club's biggest problems was generating a strong offensive attack. Time in and time out, the offence sputtered, coughed and wheezed before giving up the ball.

Ron Goldenberg, winner of the Col. S.C. Holland trophy as the most valuable player on the 1971 squad is returning for one more year after graduating with his BSc last spring.

Veteran Bob Bindon, who finished his college career last year, was the club's top rusher with 36 carries for 183 yards or a 5.1 average.

The leading pass catcher on the Georgians, Ron Goldenberg snared 20 passes for a 291-yard total. Goldenberg, who is back this season for his final whirl at college ball, also led the team in scoring with 23 points with one touchdown, eight converts, three singles and a pair of field goals. Rookie fullback Alvin Johns finished second in the scoring with 12 points on a pair of touchdowns.

Returning to anchor the defensive line will be Dan D'All, a former member of NDG Maple Leafs. Gerry Malekos, who sat out last season, is returning and will probably be the club's flanker.

But the positioning will depend on how new coach, Dave King wants to utilize his personnel. King, who was head coach at University of Montreal last season, replaces Brian Hayes.

The Georgians will have a difficult time winning the divisional championship this season no matter how good they are. University of Montreal and Royal Military College, who lacked the manpower to be threats in the varsity football league, have been moved out of the A Section.

Sir George is in a four-team division with Bishop's, Loyola and McGill and plays home-and-home schedule with each of the clubs during the regular season.

1971 league and team statistics appear on page 30.

Bob Philip, former player for the Georgians in the late 'sixties will head Canada's fourth ranked team in a renewed bid to break the Ontario hold on collegiate championships.

Dave King, with his pro and OSLAA-QUAA experience will offset the tougher competitive situation in the new four team A division.

Coaching Changes Mark New Era

by Robin Palin

Bob Philip was a jack-of-all-trades in the Sir George Williams University Athletic department last year. Aside from serving as the university's assistant varsity hockey coach, Philip also directed the highly-touted intramural program and often popped up on the Georgian hockey telecasts as a guest analyst and twice as a play-by-play announcer.

But it is likely that Philip's announcing career is over for a while because the former Georgian centre has a huge task to perform.

The personable Philip has inherited the head hockey coaching job at Sir George from Paul Arsenault, who has joined Loyola's athletic staff as head hockey coach and as a lecturer.

Philip was Arsenault's assistant for two years, joining staff as a part-time coach while obtaining an education degree from McGill.

"I took the job at that time because I had hopes of eventually becoming a varsity hockey coach," said Philip. "Otherwise I wouldn't have taken the job."

"There are now three Sir George coaches in the league," he said referring to Arsenault and Dave Dies, varsity coach at McGill.

"Two of them have won league championships and taken the Georgians to the nationals. Then, there's me."

Dies coached at Sir George in the 1968-69 season and took the Georgians to the national finals in Edmonton. Philip scored a pair of goals to spearhead the Georgians' semi-final win over St. Mary's Huskies in perhaps his finest game as a Georgian.

Philip also played two seasons for Arsenault who was head hockey coach during the 1963-69 period. During his tenure, Arsenault coached the Georgians to five conference titles including the first-ever Quebec University Athletic Association title last season.

"It's easier taking over a team that finished last," Philip said. "But when you take over a team that won a championship, there's no way to improve. It's a tough act to follow."

Philip says he is not worried about his authority being questioned by the players, even though it is only two years since he was a player himself.

"College hockey players are here for two reasons," he said. "First they want an education and second they want to stay in hockey in hopes of playing pro when they are through college."

"If I tell them something, they'll know I'm saying it because I think it will improve their play and their chances of getting a pro tryout."

Former Montreal Alouette defensive halfback Dave King is the Georgians' fourth head football coach.

King, who coached last season at University of Montreal replaces Brian Hayes who left at the end of the 1971 football season.

King started his professional football career with the Alouettes in 1957 after playing for Toronto Balmy Beach and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union.

While with the Alouettes, King and Ed Learn, another defensive half, formed an effective punt-return duo for the Eastern Football Conference club.

In 1961, King joined the coaching staff at the University of Montreal, serving as an assistant coach for two years, before being appointed head coach in 1963.

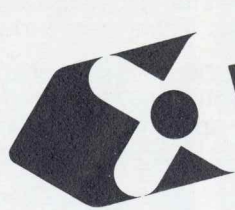

"Having been at the U of M and having been familiar with the players at Sir George, should be helpful. Sir George has a lot of fine players and there is a lot of potential here," King said.

"The school has done well in hockey and has held its own in basketball and there's no reason the same can't be true for football."

12:16 of the first overtime period . . .

by Glenn Cole

To many people winning a hockey championship is a simple case of winning more games and scoring more goals than the opposition. Few realize the amount of work that goes into preparing a team for such a task.

There is no doubt that the Georgians worked hard and long hours to attain the Quebec University Athletic Association hockey title last season and the No. 4 ranking in the nation. The team practised hard, played 37 games and that is quite a load considering that most of the players on the team were newcomers.

Fourteen rookies were part of the aggregation that nipped Loyola 1-0 in the QUAA final last March when rookie defenceman Mario Cuttini zipped a shot into the Loyola net at 12:16 of the first overtime period.

It was the last win the Georgians managed to post during the 1971-72 season, but coaches Paul Arsenault and Bob Philip had to be satisfied with the over-all effort.

Pat Bossey

Coming from Junior B hockey in Boucherville, Mario Cuttini joined the squad as a result of filling out an orientation form at registration. Mario's overtime slap shot from inside Loyola's blue line gave Sir George the first QUAA hockey Championship.

Sir George started off the season with four exhibition games, three of them in three days in the Maritimes. Sir George then opened their season with a 3-0 win over McGill and by the Christmas break, they were 7-0 in league play and had also scored their first-ever win over University of Toronto Varsity Blues.

On January 7, the Georgians faced their first meeting with the Loyola Warriors. The undefeated record went out the window that night as the Warriors took advantage of Georgians' defensive miscues en route to a 6-1 victory. Five nights later, Sir George carried a 3-1 lead into the third period against Sherbrooke and finished on the short end of a 5-3 score.

Convincing wins over McGill and RMC, the league's tail-enders, brought the Georgians to their next meeting against Sherbrooke at the Palais des Sports January 22. A three-goal blitz by the Vert et Or carried them to an 8-1 win in perhaps the Georgians' worst performance of the season.

The Georgians lost and tied against Loyola, beat Sherbrooke 4-1, defeated and tied Trois-Rivieres, unpended University of Montreal and dropped a pair of games to Bishop's to round out the season.

The two losses to Bishop's had people wondering how the Georgians would fare against Sherbrooke in the semi-final on March 8. The two teams were tied 3-3 going into the final period when Mark Shewchuk, Mike McNamara and Barry Walker scored in a space of 70 seconds to give the Georgians a 6-3 win and a berth in the finals against Loyola.

There were several top individual performances last season notably a 36-goal season by rookie of the year Shewchuk. Shewchuk, recruited from the Montreal Industrial league, now is a member of Quebec Nordiques of the World Hockey Association.

Barry Cullen, voted as the Georgians' MVP, was a 24-goal man last year and Rick Moore, the most improved player over the course of the season, had 13 goals and 15 assists for 28 points.

John Murray, who started out the season up front and was shifted back to defence near Christmas, won the best defensive player award.

1971-72 league and team statistics appear on page 14.

A Curtain Call For The Icemen

by David Gersovitz

What to do for an encore is the problem facing the Sir George Varsity Hockey Team this season. After all, what more can a team do after winning the Quebec University Athletic Association championship in a thrilling 1-0 overtime triumph over their arch-rivals, the Loyola Warriors?

What more can top the rags to riches tale of the 1971-72 Georgians that culminated one cold night in March at the Loyola Arena when Mario Cuttini scored after seventy-two minutes of scoreless, heart-stopping hockey?

Both these questions can be answered with one word—plenty. The Georgians still have much to accomplish. They won the league title, but another league title, coupled with a decisive first place finish in league play would be even better. Then if you really want to set lofty goals, there's always the National Championship which would look really nice in any team's record book.

Another goal among some of the veterans is to avenge some embarrassing defeats at the hands of teams not considered to be in the same championship class as to Georgians. Schools like Queen's, St. Lawrence and Bishop's are high on the list of teams the Georgians would like to whip.

Given a few breaks on and off the ice that all championship teams need, the Georgians will have an excellent chance to accomplish most if not all of their objectives.

Strength down centre is a vital prerequisite for winning hockey teams, and the Georgians appear to be solid in that category. Rick Moore, the eighteen-year-old rookie sensation from Verdun, should continue his rapid development into the pro-calibre centre that several scouts feel he can become.

With veterans like Goaltender Bernie Wolfe, the hero of the playoffs for the Georgians, defencemen Mario Cuttini, Bill Hatter, George Tower and Kevin Cross and forwards Don Atkinson, Ross Paterson and Chuck Quenneville, Sir George will be a much more experienced unit this year.

Pat Bossy

Bernie Wolfe turned down an offer from the Junior Canadiens to play varsity hockey. Bernie's solid overall performance has placed him among the top ten goaltenders in Canadian collegiate play.

Pat Bossy

One of the youngest rookies to don a Georgian varsity hockey sweater, Rick Moore started in the regular lineup at 16. His performance last year, averaging almost a point a game, will make Rick a key figure in this year's campaign.

Kevin Brown joins the Georgians from Acadia University where he was one of the top centres in the AIAA last season. Ray Brunet, a defenceman, played against Brown last year while at PEI but the two will be teammates this season. Brunet will be joined on defence by Ron Lapointe, who was the team captain of Dawson College last season when they won the CEGEP championship.

You will find more than enough talent to replace the Mike McNamara, Mark Shewchuck, John Murray and Rory McKay, all stars of last year's winning team who've departed for one reason or another.

If coach Philip is successful in molding this combination of veterans and newcomers into a solid unit, the Georgians will have to be established as the team to beat in the Q.U.A.A.

Opposition to the Garnet and Gold's run for top spot will likely come from Loyola, where, although a lot of rookies and a new head coach have been added, a competitive squad can be expected to emerge. Trois-Rivieres also might offer a hard fight and McGill can only be much better.

But the whole story is the Georgians. It's for them to win or lose. If they meet the challenge, they'll get to meet old friends like St. Mary's and Toronto, both of which should be back to fight for the national title.

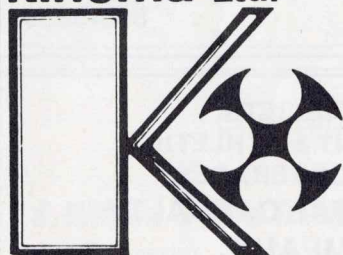

Given another chance, I'd bank on the Georgians. After that, if the proposed North American Championship come to pass, who knows how far the Georgians will go? Today Quebec! Tomorrow the World?

Returning to handle defense chores, Bill Hattem is in his second year on the team. Previously Bill played Junior A hockey with St. Jerome.

Basketball in Quebec: Signs of vitality

by David Gersovitz

Is basketball dying as a Varsity sport at Quebec Universities? Does it have a realistic chance to survive considering the financial and political realities facing Quebec Institutions? Several people, including the Montreal Star's Pat Hickey, have declared that college basketball is on the wane in this province. But is basketball really dying, or is it merely in a rebuilding phase? Could this be the year that sends Quebec college basketball back to the heights?

Hickey and many others remember the days not so far in the past when people packed local gyms to watch athletes like Nasko Golomeev and Pierre Brodeur make McGill a power to be reckoned with. They also remember the great Loyola Warrior teams of the late sixties that included such fine talent as John McAuliffe, Tom Profenno, Earl Lewis and Jack Contos.

Indeed, only two short years ago, that Loyola team was so strong it beat a Sir George team by ninety-nine points. That famous Loyola dynasty lasted for four years in which the Warriors didn't lose one league game.

Two years though have vastly changed the college basketball scene in Quebec. McGill, partly through its own ineptitudes and partly because of a sorry financial situation, has fallen from a once lofty height. Despite winning the league title in an upset, the redmen do little recruiting anymore.

The program is a year-to-year thing, and only continued hard work by their part-time personnel will buy the time they need to build up a solid program.

Loyola, once the scourge of the old Ottawa-St. Lawrence league, came up with a rookie-laden line-up liberally sprinkled with local talent. They proceeded to have their incredible winning streak halted at sixty-six by Sir George, the same team they'd beaten the year before by nearly one hundred points. They then lost two more league games, and then were upset in the finals by an upstart McGill team that caught fire at the right time.

These changes though don't necessarily mean that rigor mortis is setting in. After all, Loyola was going to be hit sooner or later by graduation. They had gone with the same cast of characters for nearly four years, and they had no choice but to rebuild all in one year.

McGill's problems had nothing to do with the state of basketball in Quebec. They arose out of the school's financial situation and numerous foul-ups over the year in the Athletics Department, in the area of recruiting. Things at McGill are now a little more stable, at least for the short-term.

Perhaps signs of vitality though for college basketball are the changes for the better that have happened over the last eighteen months. People like Paul Arsenault, Wilf Jackson and Tom Brethel have helped turn around the basketball program at Sir George. Once the laughing-stock of the league, the Georgians are now contending for first place.

Thanks to a beautiful new gym and the play of Pierre Dion, Laval and Quebec City have discovered basketball in a big way. Perhaps the best change though came last season when for the first time in five years the race for first place was wide open. The outgrowth of this hotly contested race was standing room only crowds for the playoffs at McGill.

Assuming that some of this great balance is maintained, and that Loyola and Sir George improve as expected, one can expect fan interest to keep on rising. Considering that in addition to Sir George and Loyola, Bishop's, Sherbrooke and Laval all went with rookie-laden clubs last year and should be improved and that Macdonald should be at least as good as last season, one can also expect the level of competition to improve.

Women's Athletics:

by Jane Tanner

New hockey league formed . . .

The 1971-72 season was very successful participation-wise for women's athletics.

Last year saw the formation of a Woman's Hockey team and the Georgettes' persistence was finally rewarded with their win against Macdonald College in the last game of the season.

Margie Ross was the outstanding performer of the team. She will be sadly missed next season, but there are many capable pucksters who are raring to go and to fill the gap in '72-73.

A new league has been formed and Sir George Williams University will face-off against Dawson College, Loyola, Macdonald-John Abbott, Les Polysonnes and the Toronto Dominion Bank.

. . . basketball league threat while

The basketball team, coached by Olga Hrycak finished third in the league standings and lost to first place Macdonald in the semi-finals.

Val Pelletier was the teams' top scorer with 119 points in league play and in addition she finished second in the top ten scorers of the Association section.

The team will be sorry to see Karen Wilkinson, an experienced player of four years go, but are fortunate in that she is the only graduate.

Darlene Graham and Marilyn Turner, two veterans of the team, displayed great playmaking and with the addition of last year's now experienced 5 rookies and new recruits, Sir George should be a threat in the newly formed Quebec University Athletic Association Basketball League.

Volleyball participation was rather sparse last season. The girls practise at Montreal High School not far from the University and it is hoped that new blood will appear next year. The team under the supervision of Claude Lapre enjoyed two victories over arch rivals Loyola College and ended up seventh in league play.

Diane Tardiff was selected most valuable player of the team and her spirit with the steady help of veterans Grace Jefferies, Sylvia Pivok and rookies Elaine Cheng, Tina Mathieu and Elizabeth Grant, we hope to have a good nucleus to build a high calibre team with next season.

Intramurals

On the Intramural side of the women's program girls last year enjoyed a modern dance class instructed by Mrs. Margaret Goldstein. The sessions were held twice a week and consisted of jazz movement and interpretative dancing.

Other activities that women are able to participate in on the co-ed side are badminton, tennis, curling, bowling, riflery, table tennis, fencing, fitness—and ski-conditioning and even the age old art of self-defence—karate.

The 1972-73 Women's basketball and volleyball schedule appears on page 10

WHA Reaches Into College Ranks

by Glenn Cole

News Item-Quebec-Quebec Les Nordiques of the World Hockey Association announced the signing of five more players today. Jean-Yves Cartier, Yves Bergeron, Mark Shewchuck, Mike McNamara and Rocky Martin all agreed to two-year deals with the club that will begin play in the WHA this season.

The above item probably didn't raise too many eyebrows across Canada and the United States when it appeared in various papers. To most people, it was just another case of a WHA team signing another group of non-descripts to contracts so they can at least have a training camp next fall.

But to Bob Philip, hockey coach at Sir George Williams University, the news was a bit disturbing.

You may have noticed that two of the names mentioned were key cogs in the Georgians' drive to the Quebec University Athletic Association hockey title last year. Both Mark Shewchuk and Mike McNamara were scheduled to return to Sir George and play for the Georgians. Then came the WHA waving all kinds of cash and bonuses and with the help of group known as Pro Sports, it was good-bye Mike and Mark.

Pat Bossy

Last year was Mark Shewchuk's first year in organized hockey having previously played in the Industrial League for Northern Electric. His style and performance in a Georgian uniform instantly attracted a large following among collegiate hockey fans.

Mike McNamara collected the Allan Smith Memorial Trophy as the most valuable player during the 1970-71 campaign while being named to the OSLAA All Star first team.

The Georgians have not been the only college team to lose players from their team to professional hockey clubs. Normand Dubé, who led the University of Sherbrooke Vert et Or's scoring last season and was second in the QUAA, has signed with the Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League. John Wright, who believe it or not still has another year of eligibility with University of Toronto Varsity Blues, has reportedly inked a contract with the NHL's Vancouver Canucks.

Bob McAneeley, who was a top scorer in the Western Canada Intercollegiate Conference while playing for University of British Columbia, has agreed to terms with the WHA's Alberta Oilers. He has at least three years of eligibility left in college hockey. And there are probably a few more that haven't been disclosed.

Then you turn around and look at some of the American colleges and universities and find that they too are losing players to WHA teams, notably the New England Whalers, who can draw from two of the best teams in U.S. college hockey right in their own backyard—Boston College and Boston University. What can the colleges do? Not too much.

Unfortunately, the colleges do not have an agreement with either the NHL or WHA which would prevent a pro team from plucking someone out of school before he has finished his degree program.

So, the only thing a university or college can do is talk to a player like Shewchuk and try and convince him to stay in school for a couple of more years and complete his degree and at the same time play a pretty good calibre of hockey.

And despite what some of the pro scouts say, college hockey isn't all that bad. Anyone who has watched some of those so-called NHL games between the California Golden Seals and the Montreal Canadiens will probably tell you that pro hockey isn't all it's cracked up to be. Usually the Seals skate like brass monkeys.

Let's face it, pro sports is a business, like any other business and for this reason you have to wonder what is going to happen to some of these players that have signed with WHA teams.

Rumor has it that the five who signed with Les Nordiques got $40,000 for a two-year deal, including a bonus for signing. Hopefully, the player has a sound assurance that he is going to get the money. But what happens if he doesn't? What happens if he is cut from the team before the season starts?

And even if the player does get the money, what happens after his contract runs out?

$40,000 for two years isn't a great deal, after the agents and the tax department take their bites from the pie.

It should be noted here that a good number of baseball players now are getting college degrees before turning to pro ball. Of course, the difference is that baseball encourages this practice.

So, when baseball players such as Mike Marshall or Bill Stoneman of the Expos get fed up with the sport or retire, they have the opportunity of turning to something else instead of having to become gas station operators.

There are a lot of ex-pro hockey players running gas stations or doing other mundane jobs. And, not too many of them are enjoying their existence.

SWIMMING

It seems kind of strange that Sir George always manages to do well in swimming, especially when you consider the school has no pool of its own.

Five members of the Sir George swimming team competed in the Canadian Intercollegiate championships at Laval University and to the surprise of some, the Georgians finished sixth in the over-all standings.

The strength of the swimmers appeared to be in the relay events rather than individual competitions. In the Canadian championships, the Georgians managed to squeeze into the 400-yard relay and the 800-yard free-style relay.

In the over-all Quebec University Athletic Association championships, the Georgians finished second to powerful McGill.

VOLLEYBALL

The volleyball team was reinstituted last year after a five-year absence. Coach Dough Insleay guided the Georgians to a fourth-place finish in the QUAA standings but the Georgians were eliminated in the playoffs by University of Sherbrooke.

SKIING

Georgian skier Peter Leupold was the top individual performer as he led the Sir George ski team to a second-place finish in the "A" section of the Quebec University Athletic Association ski meet.

CURLING

The Sir George Curlers had a hot and cold year in 1971-72 and settled for a third-place finish in the Quebec University Athletic Association behind McGill and Sherbrooke.

The team, coached by Dave Ramsey, did manage to raise a few eyebrows here in the province though, when they beat the highly-touted rink of Bill Kent in the Montreal West Invitational Bonspiel. Spurred on by the win over Kent, the Georgians went on to win the bonspiel.

SOCCER

The Georgians' Soccer Team finished with a 2-4 won-lost record in the Quebec University Athletic Association Soccer Conference, finishing behind Loyola, Royal Military College and Laval in the seven-team league.

Top player for coach Ron Licorish's squad was Miguel Agostino, voted as the team's Most Valuable Player. Agostino, a three-year veteran, scored nine of the Georgians' 15 goals.

WATER POLO | National Team members needed!

The Paper

Over the past few years, whenever Sir George had fielded (or watered) a water polo team, it has met with a fair amount of success. This year was no different as the Georgian water boys finished third in the QUAA.

Joe Roboz, coach of the team, said that last year's team was the best this university had had since 1968.

The only problem was that Loyola and McGill who finished first and second respectively had a fair number of National Team members on their squad.

Sir George had one in the very talented person of Irving Rosenberg who was the team captain and has represented Canada in International competition for the last four years.

Another water polo star on Sir George's team was Peter Leupold who showed enormous potential this year while earning double letters in skiing and water polo.

Tommy Arusoo played Georgian polo last year after having been named to the NCAA All American team three times. Soen Yap, Claude Nolan, Pierre Dussault, Jack Rosen, Fred Meyer, Phil Bourgois and Gabor Szabdy rounded out the team.

In the City League, the Georgians fared much better and finished second due largely to the talented goaltending of Brian Scoffield. Scoffield, who Joe Roboz says is "a natural national teamer with a little bit of work and desire" was ineligible to take part in QUAA action because he was an evening student. The defensive game subsequently suffered.

The outlook for next year's water polo program is clear. Discussions are presently going on with the coach of the national team to have some All-Canadians attend and play for Sir George. This would serve to prime the hopefuls for two major international events next year—the world student games in Moscow and the world aquatic games in Singapore.
